

FRENCH INDO-CHINA

to the of collaboration provided they could the group's policy. la their nervous zeal for lose of their mutual interest in fighting high arbitrary decrees, and the concessions regime. is a of professional solidarity, could be developed with greater profit, and has not yet adequately done by the government. A planter a record of the experiments he conducted over a twenty-year period, this is the nearest approach to systematic One of the worst obstacles in developing rubber are the isolated of rubber planters* who frantically experiment to wealth. Effective experimentation can only be by with adequate capital—which means either the or big companies. The small planters represent, in such the of routine, a spirit of mutual distrust, and a raico-operative undisciplined self-interest. In 1927, and in 1929, of the Michelin Company produced
a
They their rubber purchases in the of inferior quality. The small planters were in-did to their rubber of a better or more aid, unique feature of French policy, is partly 10 the to a recognition of the evils of It is of the to make France with her colonies a therefore, is to produce rubber not for in the to supply France, who will no be on foreign resources. This is not only a in of but an insurance against the
It that induced the to aid to the whose products fell the nd credit to colonists by die its aM apportioned to the of By 1935 the state aid to to 7,500^000 and a bonus was also en such generosity was $ for the bad already paid a ough for

Tbt

a the
of land

wig

Oat of concessions

tdgr

From

134